Otis has under stood from the first that he could have as many men as he considered peces sary to put down the Filipino revolt. There will be no difficulty in getting as many volunteers as may be called for. A number of governors have notified the president of the willingness of their states to furnish as many as nay be wanted, and Gov. Otero, of New Mexico, called in person to tell President McKinley that his state is ready to furnish a regiment at a day's notice; that the four companies of Roose velt's Rough Riders from that state are ready to a man to enlist for the Philippines.

Hon, Webster Davis, assistant secretary of the interior, is now known as me of the country's greatest orators, although he is comparatively a young nan. Pollowing is an extract from his Decoration day oration, at Arlington cemetery: "Yes, as these survivers march on Decoration day, by lookng closely you can see between the lines those specter soldiers-the boys who never came home: you can see also, the phantom flags and banners floating among them-these were borne by the boys who never came back. Truly, the greatest product of our nation is our heroes! This nation grows men. Some person will tell you that corn is king; some that fron is king; others that coal is king; then, again, others that cotton is king; but all are mistaken-in this country man king. And the nation or country and such loftiness of soul, that they will go down to death, if need be, for an idea, for a principle, can rule the world. For these are the men which make a country great and a nation strong and invincible."
